F.No.2-12/2011-12/NTM/Publisher

10th May, 2011

NTM is inviting publishers to collaborate with NTM for bringing out the Indian language editions of the shortlisted texts. Publishers interested in bringing out the Indian language editions may send their proposals by 30th May 2011.

The possible arrangements that NTM and regional language publishers can enter into are suggested below:

1. The regional language publisher takes up the entire task as Turnkey Project whereby, it translates, prints and distributes the texts. Quality check will be done periodically by NTM
2. NTM may translate the book, and the regional language publisher may take up copyediting, typesetting, printing and distribution.
3. NTM will pass on the CRC to the regional language publisher and the regional language publisher will print and distribute the translated texts.

NTM will enter into an agreement with the copyright holder and procure translation rights for all the titles. Please note that in all the three cases NTM may bear the entire plant cost including translation, copyediting and typesetting charges, and the regional language publisher will bear the manufacturing charges including printing and distribution. The regional language publisher will pay, as will be agreed, an amount of royalty to NTM.

Of the three, NTM's first preference is to assign the complete work as Turnkey Project as mentioned in point 1. Financial and other specific issues of the Project could be worked out in detail as soon as NTM is informed about the regional language publishers' interest in the collaboration. Interested regional language publishers may send in their proposals by 30th May, 2011. List of the titles and the format in which the proposals may be submitted can be found in the annexure.
